1. Campus Problems: [REDACTED]

professional recruiter, was forced to interview candidates from the University of Virginia at his motel this week when the Placement Director called to advise him that the campus was covered with posters and placards warning students that CIA would be on campus and asking them to refuse to be interviewed by a CIA representative. He followed proper recruitment procedures.

2. Application Returned: [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] recruiter, reported the first case of an applicant who returned his application with the statement that "in view of the current revelations in the media" he was no longer interested in applying to CIA.

3. Summer Interns: Three hundred sixty-five completed applications have been received for the Summer Intern Program. Of these, 31 have been accepted. Ten of the 16 from this past summer's class who are eligible to return have written that they wish to do so. Ninety percent of the interns have one or more years of graduate school. For the last three years, 75 percent were graduate students.

4. Co-op: Preliminary reports from offices using co-ops show that 75 percent of the co-ops graduating this year are interested in staff employment and are desired by the offices. This figure may be reduced through fund and slot limitations and security reinvestigations. In 1974, 53 percent of our graduating co-ops became staff employee. The national average for retention of graduating co-ops runs about 50 percent.
